The rebuilding and enlarging of the 100-year-old chemical factory at Hrastnik, Slovenia, will be completed in the near future. Between 1947 and 1948 the first new structure was completed. A bridge was built near the factory in 1949 to facilitate railroad transportation. A third Mills-Packard chamber for the production of sulfuric acid was built at the end of 1949. This is 15 meters high and is protected by a strong iron framework. The chamber itself has a lead casing which weighs 25 tons.
